
career

-

1

current job offersintern

Are you wondering what a job in M&A advisory is like and whether it is right for you? Well, why not try an internship? You will be right in the middle of things from the very first day of your internship, working as part of a professional team in one or more different areas of this business. You will receive guidance from experienced advisors and a personal mentor.

senior business developer

Your role will be mainly focused on bringing new customers on board by selling to them a variety of services such as sell-side advisory, buy-side advisory, M&A coaching and board advisory.

This is a great career opportunity for very senior professionals in which you will have a massive earning potential without any upper cap. Successful candidates are comfortable with performance based retribution. You may work from home or from the office.

-

2

why you?

Would you agree that an advisor's personality is crucial to the success of her or his work? That finding the best solutions for the client requires the best advisors? Are you ready to become a top-class advisor? Then we invite you to read further.

We expect you to have a very good degree and foreign language skills. Open mindedness, curiosity, motivation, ambition and team qualities are some of the main characteristics we are looking for.

Most of our advisors studied business and economics. Nevertheless, graduates and professionals from other disciplines are also welcome.

No matter whether you apply for an open job offer or for an internship, we would like to know YOU as well as, your personality, your motivations, your skills and your goals. When you send us an application tell us why you think you are the right candidate for the job.

-

3

application process

Applications shall be sent to hr@arscorporate.com only.

interns & graduates

Your application should be written in English and includes the following:

- resume with current photograph
- ? cover letter
- ? copy of credentials and certificates

In case your application meets the above mentioned criteria it will be evaluated internally. If the evaluation result turns out positive, you will be invited to a telephone or personal interview of one or more rounds.

experienced professionals

For candidates who have already gathered relevant professional experience, we use to tailor the recruiting process to the individual circumstances. During in-depth discussions with our partners we explore your potential, our mutual fit and elaborate on the career prospects you might have at ARS CORPORATE.